THEATRE

Mixed Blood Theatre, founded in 1976 by Artistic Director Jack Reuler, is dedicated to the spirit of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s dream. Mixed Blood uses theater as a vehicle for artistry, entertainment, education, and social change. The professional, multiracial company promotes cultural pluralism, individual equality, and artistic excellence in its mainstage season; custom productions for corporations, government agencies, and educational institutions; and culturally specific touring shows that reach a quarter-million young people each year. It's a general admission house (200 seats).
